THE BUFFALO;

where he is prepared to accommodate Travellers, and others who may please to call on him, in the best manner. He is well provided with a variety of the best liquors his Bedding and other accommodations will be furnished equal to any in the Western Country. His Stable is well supplied with Hay, Oats, and Corn, and his Outfit particularly attentive, and careful. Those who are so obliging as to call on him, may rest assured that they shall receive the greatest attention, and every exertion will be made to make their situation agreeable. Private parties may be accommodated with a room undisturbed by the bustle of a tavern.

Lexington, April 29.

FOR SALE.

A GREAT bargain may be had in that handsome lot of land whereon I now live, of 455 acres, lying on David's fork of Elkhorn, in Fayette county, eight miles from Lexington. There is about 120 acres of open land, the dwelling house is of brick, two stories, 27 by 22, finished off in a neat plain manner; two grist mills in good repair, having lately been built anew, the dam and all the under works of the mills are of locust timber, and the mills are allowed to grind faster than any mills in that quarter, one pair of stones are French Burr; there are two good log houses at said mills, and a distillery likewise convenient thereto, the springs and stock water were never known to fail, the springs being equal to any in the country. As I wish to sell for cash, I mean to offer a great bargain, I will take four pounds per acre cash, selling the whole together, or I will divide it as may best suit the purchaser, as it lies well to divide. Rate the improvements at a very moderate price, and the land will not be six dollars per acre any person who will view the place, will be convinced that it is the greatest bargain that has been sold, or offered for sale, in this quarter of the country. Any person wishing to purchase, can view the premises, by applying to the subscriber living thereon. I will also sell the stand Horse.

LAMPLIGHTER;

It is well known that his figure and blood is equal to any horse in the state, and as a foal getter, it is a high reputation as any other horse known of—I will take 1000 dollars for him, and that he would make in one season, in different parts of this state, his colts being so much approved of, it being generally allowed, that no horse ever stood in this part of the country, whose colts were so universally approved of, or had so few sorry colts among them.

SAMUEL MORTON.

September 26.

TO THE HONOURABLE
GEORGE MUTER, AND
BENJAMIN SEBASTIAN.

The following letter has been referred to in this Publication.

To the Honorable GEORGE MUTER, and BENJAMIN SEBASTIAN, now at Frankfort.

IN reply to your note in Mr. Bradford's paper of Saturday last, I can, with the utmost frankness and sincerity, assure your honors, that your assertion of me, is not true, and cannot be justified—and anxious to have the matter between us, thus brought to issue, determined, before I leave the country, which cannot possibly be done by suit; I propose that it shall be left to twelve of the most respectable citizens of Woodford County, in which one of your honors reside. That the persons named by us reciprocally—that you specify your charge in writing, with the facts on which you found it, and transmit a copy to me; to that I will answer it writing; upon which, and the depositions, and other exhibits in the case, between General Wilkinson and myself, let the question between us be submitted. This will be coming to the point, in a fair and speedy manner—and a decision to be obtained will be equally valid, as the verdict of a jury. To facilitate the object of this proposition, I will now name six persons on my part, (to wit) Peyton Shortt; John Watkins, Wm. Steele, Robert Alexander, John Finney, and Marquis Calmes. Gentlemen, you can name as many more, and a joint request for their attendance at Woodford Court-house, on some day in the first week in November next, (which you may infer in the request to be sent the persons named) and I will charge myself with having it presented, if you will inclose it to me in an answer which I shall expect to this application. The originals of all the papers in the case above alluded to, are in the office of your court, consequently now immediately accessible to you; and I have copies of almost all of them, of which I will forthwith furnish you a list—should you want others, you can easily procure them, to be used on the trial; nor shall the expense be an objection—I will pay that, if you come into this proposal, and request it.

Your honors humble servant,
October, 1795. H. MARSHALL.

SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES.
March 22, 1796.

In the case of the Kentucky Memorialists, exhibiting certain allegations against Mr. Marshall, a Senator from this State.

On the question to adopt the report as amended,
It passed in the affirmative, Yeas, 16, Nays, 8.

The yeas and nays being required by one fifth of the Senators present,

Those who voted in the affirmative, are, Messrs. Bingham, Bradford, Calbot, Folter, Frelinghuysen, Gunn, Henry, Latimer, Livermore, Paine, Read, Rofs, Rutherford, Strong, Trumbull, and Vining.

Those who voted in the negative, are, Messrs. Bloodworth, Brown, Burr, Langdon, Martin, Mason, Robinson, and Tazewell.

So the report was adopted as follows:

The committee to whom were referred the letter of the governor, and the memorial of the representatives of Kentucky, with the papers accompanying them, report.

That the representatives of the free-men of Kentucky state in their memorial, that in February 1795, a pamphlet was published by George Muter, and Benjamin Sebastian (who were two judges of the Court of Appeals) in which they say, that Humphrey Marshall had a suit in Chancery in the said Court of Appeals, in which it appearing manifest from the oath of the complainant, from disinterested testimony, from records, from documents furnished by himself and from the contradictions contained in his own answer, that he had committed a gross fraud; and that gave a decree against him, and that in the investigation he was publicly charged with perjury. That Mr. Marshall in a publication in the Kentucky Gazette, called for a specification of the charge; To which the said George Muter and Benj. Sebastian, in a like publication, replied, that he was guilty of perjury in his answer, to the bill in chancery exhibited against him by James Wilkinson; & that they would plead justification to any suit brought against them therefor. That no such suit, as the said representatives could learn, had been brought. The said representatives further say that they do not mean to give an opinion on the justice of the said charge; but request that an investigation may immediately take place relative thereto.

Your committee observe that the said suit was tried eighteen months before Mr. Marshall was chosen a member of the Senate, and that, previous to his election, accusations had taken place between him and the judges of the Court, relating to the same suit.

The representatives of Kentucky have not furnished any copy of Mr. Marshall's answer on oath; nor have they stated any part of the testimony, or produced any of the said records or documents, or the copy of any paper in the cause, nor have they intimated a design to bring forward these or any other proofs.

Your committee are informed by the other Senator, and the two Representatives in Congress from Kentucky, that they have not been requested by the Legislature of that state to prosecute this enquiry, and that they are not possessed of any evidence in the case, and that they believe no person is authorized to appear on behalf of the Legislature.

Mr. Marshall is solicitous that a full investigation of the subject should take place in the Senate, and urges the principle, that consent takes away error, as applying on this occasion to give the Senate jurisdiction; but as no person appears to prosecute, and there is no evidence adduced to the Senate, nor even a specific charge, the committee think any further enquiry by the Senate, would be improper. If there were no objections of this sort, the committee would still be of opinion, that the memorial could not be sustained. They think that in a case of this kind no person can be held to answer for an infamous crime, unless on a presentment, or an indictment of a grand jury; and that in all such prosecutions, the accused ought to be tried by an impartial jury of the State and District, wherein the crime shall have been committed. If in the present case the party has been guilty, in the manner suggested, no reason has been alleged by the memorialists why he has not long since been tried in the State and District where he committed the offence. Until he is legally convicted, the principles of the Constitution and of the common law, concur, in presuming that he is innocent. And the committee are compelled by a sense of justice, to declare, that in their opinion this presumption in favour of Mr. Marshall, is not diminished by recriminating publications which manifest strong resentment against him.

And they are also of opinion, that as the constitution does not give jurisdiction to the Senate, the consent of the party cannot give it; and that therefore, the said memorial ought to be dismissed.

On motion,
Resolved, that the Vice-President of the United States, be requested to transmit a copy of the foregoing report to the governor of Kentucky.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE WESTERN WORLD.

You have attempted by the vilest arts, and without the least shadow of proof, to stigmatize with eternal opprobrium the brightest characters that adorn our country. By publishing poisonous and inflammatory libels, you have endeavored to brand with indelible infamy, men who have endangered their lives in order to maintain the liberties, and advocate the honor and happiness of their country; and men who have steered the political vessel safely through the storms of faction, and the deep laid intrigues of ambition. It requires the corroboration of stronger proofs than the mere assertions of such contemptible, degraded bachelors, to shake even the prejudices of those characters, who for their virtues, integrity, and patriotism, have been crowned with never fading laurels.

You wish to traduce the people into a belief, that their brightest luminaries once intended to sell them and their children to the King of Spain, and then to drag republicanism from her tribunal of liberty and justice, and dash her headlong into the black gulph of infamy and disgrace, and upon her ruins, you will erect the despotic throne of monarchy, rattling in her left hand the chains of tyranny, and brandishing in her right the torch of persecution. You are constrained by your infatuation and deluded by your glaring hopes. The (supposed) conspirators can with propriety and justice repel every charge, and expose your sophistry and villany. While basking under the fond delusion of proving at the bar of justice, that some of our most enlightened citizens have been, and are now traitors to their country, you have fallen like Lucifer, never to rise again.

You have assailed with your venomous darts of envy, the reputation of Judge Innes, the whole tenor of whose life has been devoted to the service and interest of his country. Is he to receive a stigma upon his character, which can never be erased, because he is affected with a complaint which is incidental to human nature? It is his misfortune, but not his crime. Oh virtue, where is thy sanctuary—innocence is attacked, and happiness has no asylum! How odious and contemptible are the effusions of polluted souls! You appear to have plucked all the flowers of Billing-gate, to decorate the columns of your paper.

Can Wood, that demon of discord and malediction, pretend to deny that he never sided with those he was first hired to vilify? Can you, thou man of truth, affirm, that you have always been a firm and staunch republican? How often has one of ye, high priests of perfidy and malice, been marked with the grossest violation of honor and virtue, and branded with crimes of the blackest dye, and how often has the other been convicted of the basest of crimes, (ingratitude) and of malicious and malignant falsehoods, which shock the human mind, and stagger belief—and regardless of all other traits in your character, to do you justice, you are no better than an assassin or robber. The day is not far distant when you will atone for your shameful and malevolent aspersions, and abominable scandals. You will yet feel the stings of remorse, the vibrations of a guilty conscience, and have no plea against the reproaches of your reason, that reflects monitor within.

No. XII.

In addition to the extracts from Coriolanus, which were given in the number, we shall now present our readers with an essay under the signature of a Western American, which was published at Frankfort, in a news-paper entitled the Guardian of Freedom, the 2d of March, 1803, and which was intended to co-operate with the writings of Coriolanus at New-York. This essay was said to have been written by a man of the name of Flournoy, who had long acted as a literary tool of the Spanish conspirators, was caressed by them, and employed as an agent on many occasions. A libel prosecution was instituted against him for the treasonable publication; but was carefully quashed, like that which was raised against George Adams, for attempting to assassinate Joseph M. Street, and no doubt if ever the speculations of Burr, Wilkinson and Brown succeed, Flournoy and Adams will receive their merited rewards. The essay requires no comments, it speaks in plain and intelligible language, the designs of treason.

For the Guardian of Freedom.

TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,
Whilst the public mind is agitated and incensed, at the narrow policy of Spain, in shutting her ports against us, permit me, through the channel of your press, to strike at the enlarged policy of our more latent and specious enemies. Instead of skimming on the surface of our disasters, I wish to level a blow at the root of our evils. Instead of directing our resentment towards the European powers, let us with more propriety turn towards Eastern America. Instead of crossing the Atlantic, let us only go beyond the Alleghany Mountain. There is the source of all our calamities—there our ills originated—thence we have derived our misfortunes, and still smart under her political scourge.

Let us no more be deceived with those fair speeches friendly communications, and pretended good intentions of our President and Eastern brethren. They will do any thing for us, except for our advantage. They have given proofs enough of this disposition.

It may be asked, why may not Eastern America extend a favorable disposition to our interests? I answer, because our interest and theirs are pointedly contradicting.

What I have already stated, may be only assertion, and assertion without proof, amounting only to invective. Now therefore, let me proceed to stubborn facts—facts undeniable and irrefutable; and which must tend to open the eyes of every Western American, to the unfriendly views and conduct of Eastern America towards us.

I shall only quote an extract from the writings of Monroe himself, after his embassy to France in 1795—"Some time (says he) in the beginning of 1795, I was informed by Mr. Pelet of the diplomatic section of the committee of public safety, and afterwards by Mr. Cambaceres likewise of that section, that in reliance on treaty with England combined nothing injurious to France, they expressly instructed their agent then negotiating with Spain, to use his utmost endeavors to secure for the United States, the points in controversy with that power. And shortly after as their negotiation advanced, I was asked as well as I remember, by those members, as likewise Boissy D'Anglas, whether we wished to possess the Floridas, since it was intimated it would be easy for France to obtain them; but which she would not do otherwise than with a view to cede them to the United States. I replied, I had no power to answer such an interrogatory; but was well persuaded that we did not wish an extension of our territory. Well satisfied I am, that France declined taking them in her treaty with Spain, which soon followed from a fear it might weaken her connection with the United States."

Now, had Monroe been friendly disposed to our interests, he might have wrote back to America, informing of those propositions made to him by those members of the diplomatic section, who were then so friendly and warmly attached to the interests of America; and thereby the provinces of East and West Florida, might have been acquired to the United States, had our eastern brethren been willing to have accepted of it. But instead of that, he being completely up to the base intrigues of his country, (Eastern America) he firmly and confidently replied, "he had no power to answer such an interrogatory; but was well persuaded that Eastern America, did not wish an extension of territory." The full and extended answer of Monroe, amounted to this, "An extension of territory to the West, would be too great an aggrandizement to our Western brethren, and their flourishing state of commerce by this acquisition might tend greatly to the hurt of our commercial interests, inasmuch as they already possess an extent of fertile soil, so vastly superior to ours that they could greatly undersell us, and thereby draw the attention of all Europe to their ports. And although we possess the poorest and meanest country in every sense, yet by a superiority of numbers, we hold the balance of power, and are determined to make use of it to our own advantage, to the disinterest of our western, fertile part of the continent. It is therefore our policy that the western rivers should mouth in the dominions of our European power; which power, by our improper and unfriendly conduct, we may render inimical to W. America, as being a part of the United, and thereby they may be denied the advantage of a foreign commercial intercourse, and consequently will be beholden to us for a source of inland trade, much to our advantage, but of little profit to them; and moreover our markets for European consumption will remain unimpaired."

So our eastern friends have a two fold view and interest, in having our foreign trade cramped here, as I have stated in the above extended answer of Monroe, to the members of the diplomatic section—that is, 1st, our lack of intercourse with the commercial powers of Europe, makes in favour of their markets. 2dly. It will finally come to pass, (if we will bear it) that they will be furnished with the live stock of Western America (i. e. our horses and cattle) at their own price. For having all other intercourse with the world lost off we must ultimately come to this; and they will entirely monopolize our traffic upon their own terms. For money we must have, otherwise how can we pay our state and continental taxes, or procure those necessary cash articles, viz: iron, steel and salt? If things go on thus, we shall be more dependent on Eastern America, than the Israelites were on the Egyptians, and our servitude will not be more tolerable. They were commanded to make brick (or what we call cat and clay) with out straw; and we are commanded to pay our proportion for the support of a government, whose policy it is to oppress us, without a chance of a free trade to procure the money. For although we possess a fertile country, watered by navigable rivers, yet it produces not the gold of Ophir, neither has it mines like unto those of Goleonda, Mexico, or Peru.

The lands of Eastern America, being poor and generally worn out, they have no doubt contemplated to live on the fat of our fertile soil without paying us a just equivalent in return, and calculate to derive more solid benefits from our country than from the hard labour of their numerous negro slaves. Hence it becomes more necessary to secede from the union, unless the abandons her position than it was for the United States to revolt from Great Britain.

The interests of France, Spain, and Western America, would go hand in hand, and they (France and Spain) would studiously promote our commercial prosperity, for their own advantage.

But it is to the advantage of Eastern America to keep us under the hatches, by having our foreign trade cramped as aforesaid. And all this false parade, feint marches, and pretended stir, which our eastern politicians have made for the procurement of a free trade for us, is only to amuse us, to prevent a dismemberment of the Union. Like sailors on sea throwing out a tub to a shoal of whales to draw their attention from the ship. It is said by some false, cold blooded politicians, "let us patiently wait until we have a balance of power on the west side of the Alleghany Mountain, and then we can fix matters better." In answer, I reply, that if we wait for that "it will not come to pass in my time; so I don't care whether it ever comes to pass. For as to my progeny (if a secession from the union does not take place shortly, or the politics of Eastern America should not change very much) I shall embark with them on the Spanish shore. For I had rather bow the knee to the Spanish Monarch, wear a crucifix, and kiss the Pope's face, than to be any longer a subject of Eastern America, under the disadvantages above stated.

In support of my jealousies of our eastern fraternity, let me now call the attention of my countrymen to a very suspicious circumstance.

Our executive has pitched on the same man (Monroe, of detested memory) as envoy extraordinary to the courts of France and Spain, to negotiate for the opening of the Spanish ports for us; the same man is chosen for this important mission, who has already proven himself so inimical to this our western country. We have now every reasonable hope, indeed, from the Negotiations of him, for the opening of the ports, who no longer ago than March, 1795, refused the acceptance of the Floridas from selfish and clandestine motives. If we may judge of the future by the past, we must seriously suspect, that his mission will turn out nothing, as the executive intended it when he made choice of him.

Although this talk may appear as sacrilegious to some, still it is my opinion, and I think time will prove it. For there is no such thing in nature as a disinterested patriot. It is a mere chimera! the puerile fancy of a poet's brain!!

A country is (as Voltaire expresses it) composed of many families, and as self-love generally leads us to stand up for and support our particular families, when a contrary interest does not intervene; so, from the like self-love, a man stands up for his town or village, which he calls his native home.

The more extended this native home is, the less we love it, for a division weakens love: It is impossible in nature to have a tender love for a family to numerous and distant as scarce to be known.

The candidate amidst his ambitious intrigues to be chosen president, vice-president, governor, senator or representative, makes a noise about his love for his country, whereas it is only himself that he loves. Every one is desirous for securing to himself that freedom and pre-eminence which is denied to his neighbor or the community at large. I now appeal to every Western American, if the facts which I have stated, are not too glaring to escape our notice.

Eastern America may no longer attempt to lull and footh us with her sycophantic flattery and amity. No more may her harps which she may now hang on the willows, vibrate on the organs of our ears, the amative and deceitful strain of "peace on earth and good will towards us." No more can we chaunt to the sound of her viol the sprightly pastoral airs of the "shepherd's wedding," and "the highway to Dublin." But the most expect, except the renounces her selfish political system, to hear in her turn, the tunes called Vive la, and the Marseilles Hymn, and other strains of martial music, until Western America becomes a distinct province or empire, and the Alleghany line. For as the would not accept of territory when it was offered to her, she ought not to grieve much at the loss of territory.

I forbode that her long farce of "this tale of a tub," to amuse and inveigle us, to prevent a secession from the general government, will be succeeded by a military tragedy. Magazines will be filling, arms brightening, cannons roaring, and human blood streaming.

'Tis not by sending Monroe to European courts to negotiate—'tis not by representation in Congress, (for there are opposite interests, and a large balance of power against us) nor by any length of time that we may patiently wait, for that will procure to us a free-commercial intercourse with foreign powers, without our own local internal exertions. It must be first, by the spirited remonstrances to be sent to congress, from the people of the states of Ohio, Kentucky, and Tennessee, and the Indiana and Mississippi territories, praying for independence. And then if we obtain it, we can send our own ambassadors to foreign courts, and make our own negotiations or attach ourselves to some other more friendly power, should we conceive it to be to our own interest. And, lastly, as the last resort, (should our petitions be spurned) let the general government at defiance, and erect ourselves into an independent distinct republic. And should we experience any weakness on our part, we can recollect that France is strong. And we can know that it is better to have a friend for a master (if we from our weakness must be mastered) than an enemy.

This is blunt, plain talk, adapted to any capacity, and no man can be so blind as not to see the force of my observations.

I am actuated from the purest motives—the love of my country, and myself, and detestation for oppression. I am attached to my native home, but have very little veneration for native rulers, the Eastern Americans; as, I conceive they are inimical to our prosperity and happiness. I do despise them and their politics, most sincerely. They have hoodwinked us, and kept us in such ignorance, that they have hitherto turned our enmity towards France and Spain, instead of themselves. But I hope that we begin to get a little more enlightened; and when the western thunder begins to roll we may know where to direct the bolt.

A WESTERN AMERICAN.

March 2d, 1803.

We now return to the original plan of the conspirators, viz: an alliance with Spain; upon which the following letter from Doctor Brooks, a member of the convention at Danville, in 1788, to a friend then in Virginia, throws some light and corroborates those charges which we have already stated.

Fayette, October 25th, 1788.

DEAR SIR,
Since your departure, our politics have taken a turn; many artifices have been practised to uphold a sinking cause, but all will not do. I need not make any observations upon the conduct of your countrymen, as I suppose you will be better informed by others. After the deliberations of our convention, it is currently reported here that Captain Johnson was converted to be a separatist by the arguments of Col. McDowell. The press has been strongly governed by devouring Cerberuses; and the poor man who ventured to display his talents under the name of a Cornplanter, has been rewarded in the usual volleys of ill language and private history. On the 11th of the preceding election, a meeting of militia officers was held, and from a court martial it was transformed into an electioneering council. The motive to their political consultation, was that it had been spread abroad that a violent attempt would be made, by the malcontents, to prevent the intended election. At this august meeting, it was proposed to instruct the representatives for the

TO JUPITER.

What man, what God, will heavenly Clio sing
Or to the warbling lute or vocal string?
What name may mimic Echo bear
O'er Pindus' clear melodious air?

Charming, as down the stream melodious flows,
The groves of Hemus, and her feathery snows,
Where to his harp's harmonious sound
Great Orpheus drew the forests round.

So moving soft the sweet musician sung
With hollow murmurs all the mountain rung;
The dying winds but gently sigh'd
The listening streams forgot to glide.

Who first to sing? who, but Saturnian Jove
Who rules the earth and sea and spangling realms above
Who heroes, men and Gods sustains
Who peerless and unbounded reigns!

His bright eye'd daughter, wisdom well may claim,
The next gradation of immortal fame
A wreath to Bacchus, too belongs
To Dian and her Virgin throngs;

Bright Phoebus sing, he gave the golden lyre!
Sing too the youth who grasp'd the serpents dire,
And Leda's wind-out-flying pair
Who train'd the fiery steeds to war,

Beneath whose twin-born stars the storm subsides
And howling rocks pour down their foamy tides
The rolling waves now rock'd to sleep
Bathe the green bosom of the deep.

What virtues next may claim the deathless strains,
Or Romulus or Numa's golden reigns?
Or trails of Glory Junius draws
Or Cato dy'ng in Freedom's cause!

Melodious muses, breathe your softest lays
For heroes poor, yet great of soul, I praise!
Camillus, Scævus, Paulus mild,
Each old in Virtue each in vice a child.

These Chiefs, with Curius and Fabricius brave
A few small Cots and scanty acres gave—Still bright'ning, see Marcellus rise
Like some young oak to greet the skies.

But like the moon the glimmering stars among Behold bright Julius lead his trains along!
Immortal Jove! place next thine own Augustus' adamant throne!

O'er the wide world may he with justice reign
From burning Ind, to Thule's frosty plain Far hence th' encroaching Partians drive
And bid the golden arts of peace, revive

Great Cæsar leaves to thee immortal Jove!
To hurl thy Thunders o'er the tainted Grove
While all Olympus trembles round
And all the spangling thrones of heaven resound.

STOLEN

FROM the commons of this city, on Tuesday night the 3d of June last, three HORSES, of the following description:

A dark bay, about seven years old, four teen hands high or upwards, branded on the left shoulder H, the skin rubbed off both shoulders by the gears, and a bluish in the left eye; newly shod all round—

A sorrel, between thirteen and fourteen hands high, three years old this spring, both hind feet white, a small star in his forehead, bob tail, and had a sore on the top of his shoulders—

A small grey, about thirteen hands high, seven years old, dark mane and tail, his mane hangs on the left side, and his hind parts incline to the colour of an iron grey; he is branded on the left thigh, but the brand is scarcely intelligible—just above the brand there is a deep scar.

The above horses were all in tolerable order.
I have no doubt but they were taken to Tennessee or Kentucky.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS
Will be given for the apprehension and conviction of the Thief, or THIRTY DOL-LARS, and all reasonable expenses, for the delivery of the Horses only.

A HANDSOME SEAT

FOR SALE.

120 Acres of first rate Land, lying on Boone's creek, Clarke county, about 11 miles east of Lexington, being part of the late Col. David Robinson's military Ryefield tract, about 60 acres cleared, and under tolerable good fence, with three never failing springs of excellent water, and stock water in abundance the season throughout; a good peach orchard, and two dwelling houses, with other cabins adjoining. Gentlemen wishing to purchase, may know the terms by applying to the subscriber on the premises.

WM. ROBINSON JR.

Ten Dollars Reward.

RAN-AWAY from the subscriber, living on the head of Jeffamine creek in Jeffamine county, on the 23d of June, a negro man named PETER, about 43 or 44 years of age, slender make, about 5 feet 5 or 6 inches high, of an uncommon brisk, lively walk, rather of a down look when spoken to. I will give ten dollars if taken in the state, & all reasonable charges if delivered to me; or if taken out of the state twenty dollars and all reasonable charges.

James Coger.

July 9, 1806. tf. pd. 3s.

TEN DOLLARS REWARD.

Strayed or stolen from the subscriber in Lexington, about the first of June last, a bright bay Gelding, six or seven years old, about fifteen hands one inch high, blind of one eye, (the eye is sunk) with a long twitch tail, shod all round, no brand that I recollect. The above reward to be paid on the delivery of the horse to me in Lexington, or by giving such information as will enable me to get him again, and all reasonable charges paid by me.

Jas. BEATTY,

August, 19, 1806. tf.
